

RIELLO

Marcin Huniewicz leads the North American division of Riello (a Carrier company), serving as the General Manager of the business unit for the last two years. At his current capacity he's also a member of AHRI Heating Industry Leadership Council.

Prior to joining Riello, he held various leadership roles at the Fire and Security division of United Technologies Corp., later transformed into a division of Carrier. While in this role, he was nominated for participation in and graduated from the Next Generation Leadership Program, class of 2018.

Before his UTC and Carrier experience, he spent several years working at middle level management functions at DHL Express in Canada. Marcin participated in and led several professional projects in Iceland, United States, and the Netherlands.

In 2009 he immigrated to Canada from his native Poland where he was involved in operations management functions at Polish Telecom and participated in the strategic business transformation and change management influenced by France Telecom and later Orange Telecom.

He pursued his education in Poland where he earned a bachelor's degree and then continued in Canada by pursuing his MBA degree.